

Health & Long-Term Care Integration

A Real Choices Systems Change Project

Current Healthcare Model vs. Integrated Healthcare Model

Current Healthcare Model

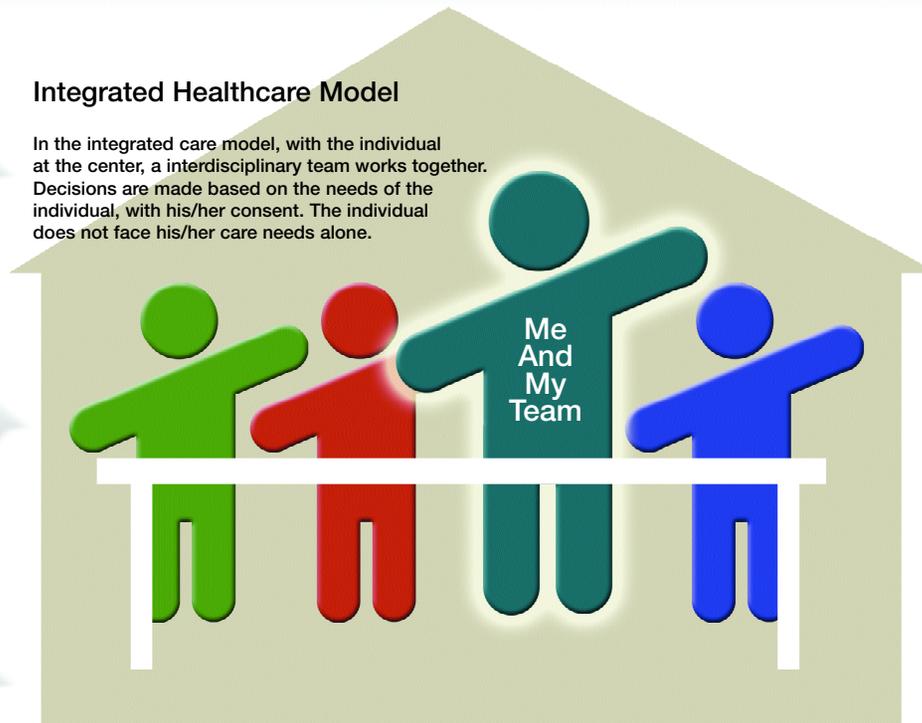

The individual maintains a separate relationship with medical providers, community service providers, and public or private insurers. Everyone operates independently from one another.

The individual has to manage his/her own care.

Integrated Healthcare Model

In the integrated care model, with the individual at the center, a interdisciplinary team works together. Decisions are made based on the needs of the individual, with his/her consent. The individual does not face his/her care needs alone.

It's a team process, with the individual at the center.
