

From Don Lambert, Attendant Services Program Participant

Hi Joan, Just one thought. In addition to the $10,000 resource limit I would suggest that enrollees in HCB also be given a yearly cost of living allowance, which would accrue, thereby increasing the total every year to compensate for inflation, which over time, would significantly reduce the $10,000 resource purchasing power. I realize this is asking for a lot but it would be my best case scenario. Good luck Don

Dear Don,

Thanks for this input. We agree that the value of the $10,000 resource limit will diminish over time due to inflation. It would be great if it could be increased in the future. However, we need to determine the impact of this proposal before any move to increase the resource limit.
